

How to Protest: From Home

Money Talks

You can make your voice heard by boycotting companies you wish to protest by not purchasing their products or using their services. You can make even more of an impact by finding local companies that provide similar products and services, ones that actually align with your values and beliefs. Bonus points if you can rally others to join you in your boycott.

Show Them A Sign

Window and yard signs are just as impactful as a protest sign. Many campaigns and organizations offer ready-made yard signs or you can make your own for a more personal touch! Your sign can have a great impact on the community around you, as everyone who passes your home will see it.

Social media is a great way to spread awareness. Make a thoughtful post, share a picture or video, or a link to an article that explains your view. Tag the person, company, or politician you're protesting and tell them how you feel!

Be A Social Butterfly

